Weather Interferes with War in East

The Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 20.—Although no official confirmation has been received of the report that the Bulgarians have captured Monastir, in southwestern Serbia, little hope is felt in England that the announcement is premature. Accepting it as true, the impression is growing that the Entente Allies are moving too late to give any service to the Serbians.

The only thing certain in regards to the plight of Serbia is that its military situation is going from bad to worse. In the north the main Serbian armies are giving way slowly before the batteries of the Austro-German forces, which would move more rapidly if weather conditions were better. It is established that the Bulgarians are in Priepol and at least have made Monastir untenable. The Anglo-French armies, based on Saloniki, seem to do no better than hold their positions.

Continuing to hold in regard to the diplomatic situation in Greece still persists in England. The reason for this optimism, however, continues to be obscure.

The weather seems to have intervened again in Russia. Little activity is reported except the retirement of the Russians to the east bank of the Dnieper in Galicia. In Constantinople, the weather in the security districts evidently has brought both sides to a standstill.

On the other front there are few changes. Desperate fighting continues between the Austrians and the Italians. In Mesopotamia, General Nisani is reported to be in sight of Bagdad.

BULGARIANS ADVANCEALBANIANS ALL FRONT

AMSTERDAM, via London, Nov. 20.—An official statement received here from Sofia, the date of which is not given, says that the Bulgarians are advancing on all fronts, capturing many prisoners and large quantities of war materials. The statement announced the capture of Priepol, made known several days ago and adds that possession of Babuna Pass by the Bulgarians has opened the way to Monastir.

The Bulgarians in the Tolo region are said to have advanced to the southwest, while their forces, operating in the direction of Plovdiv, have occupied Glin, breaking through the lines of retreating Serbians.

TEHRAN, Persia, via London, Nov. 20.—A telegram received from the government confirming the official announcement that the Shah has decided not to leave Teheran owing to the adjustment of questions raised between Russia and Persia.

ITALIAN LINE PURSUEDBY LARGE SUBMARINE

MADRID, via London, Nov. 20.—A telegram received here today gives a wireless message said to have been sent out by a submarine off the coast of Verona stating that she was being pursued by a large submarine with two torpedoes.

According to this telegram the submarine is accompanied by a steamer. The position of the Verona was given as latitude 46, longitude 10, off Calabro.

The telegram was received from the town of Salerno on Majorca Island, in the Mediterranean, off the Spanish coast, 110 miles south of Barcelona.

NO DOUBT THAT ANCONA'SASSAULT WAS AUSTRIAN.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The Italian foreign office has notified American Ambassador Page at Rome that it has no reason to believe that the submarine which sunk the liner Ancona with the loss of several Americans was other than an Austrian.

This with the Austrian government's acknowledgment of the act, clears up the last possibility that it might have been a German boat.

TO PREVENT ANTHRAX.Inspectors Examine 200 Live Mink*Shops in New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Inspectors of the state bureau of industrial hygiene began today an examination of 200 fur making shops, most of them in the lower East Side of this city, as a precaution against anthrax.

The inquiry results from the death of Miss Sophie Rosen, who is believed to have been infected with anthrax germs from a necktie made of cat's fur.

Cat farms on Long Island and other sections nearby will be examined and any infected animal will be killed.

Garage Nearly Done.
The garage of the Wertheimer brothers now being erected on the West Side is fast nearing completion. The outside work with the exception of the roof is done and the inside work will be finished as rapidly as possible. The garage should be ready for occupation within a few weeks.

COUNTY FIELD AND TRACK MEET IS BEING PROMOTED

County Educators Include Athletics in Their Discussion at Session Here.

Everything from the reorganization of pupils to athletics was discussed today at the meeting of the Fayette County Educational Association, held in the high school building. County Superintendent John S. Carroll presided at the session and approximately 50 principals were in attendance. Important business will come before the association this afternoon. The greatest bit of constructive work it has attempted will be discussed when Principal Hett Montgomery of the German township schools makes his report as chairman on the committee named to consider the reorganization of pupils. The school men have worked for some months on the problem of the betterment of the school. It is expected that the discussion will produce something tangible.

At the session this afternoon the association will also consider the proposition of holding the county institute in August instead of December next year. It is believed the change in time would be welcomed by a majority of the teachers, who do not get the benefit of the Christmas vacation because they are required to attend institute.

A movement was launched to hold a county field and track meet sometime next spring. Details will be worked out by a committee consisting of the following principals: Samuel Jones, Dunbar; H. B. Smith, Connelville; C. N. McCune, Uniontown; S. C. Snyder, Dunbar township; Joseph C. Gelfand, Brinsford; and Jacob Shover, German township. The school men pointed to the fact that field and track athletics attract the greater number of pupils, particularly those who do not go in for football and basketball. A new city engineer is expected to be appointed. It is believed, would awaken interest in physical training among students.

A. E. Wright, principal of the North Union high school, spoke on "Preparing Students for the High School," which was discussed at length. Superintendent Carroll also recommended the formation of a state teachers' association and its members of a sub-committee. It is general chairman of enrollment. This afternoon Principal C. N. McCune of Uniontown and Principal Joseph C. Gelfand of Brinsford, are on the program for addresses. Music is being furnished by the North Union quartet.

MAY SETTLE STRIKEExpect P. & L. E. Track Men's Trouble Will Be Adjusted.

SPECIAL TO THE COURIER.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 20.—The strike of section men, track workers and gang men of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad here is expected to be adjusted in a few days, according to reports today. In the meantime the men are still out and track work is at a standstill. Section foremen are acting as track workers.

The strike resulted when the company failed to comply with the strikers' demand for $2 for a nine hour day, rogues to protect their eyes, and the watering of all time and dusty cars before they were unloaded.

The strikers have been warned not to loaf about the company's property and a force of railroad detectives is patrolling the place. When the pay car arrived from Pittsburgh yesterday to pay off the strikers, only three men presented themselves to receive their wages.

CATANZARO, Sicily, Nov. 20.—Passengers on steamships arriving from the Lipari Islands report that the eruption of Mount Stromboli is increasing in violence.

They describe the spectacle as awe inspiring, particularly at night when streams of flaming lava flowing from the crater at the top of the mountain are visible many miles out at sea. The lava is pouring down the side of the mountain into the sea.

MAY HOLD CONFAB
EARLY NEXT WEEK*Retiring Members Request

Tentative Lineup Places W. E. DeBolt as Chief of Fire Department and William McCormick as Street Commissioner; Few Other Changes.

It is expected that the new councilmen will meet next week for the purpose of determining what places they shall hold when the body organizes the first Monday in January. Although there have been no conferences as yet, the fact that the retiring councilmen have requested early action indicates that the get-together meeting will come in the near future.

There is practically no question that L. L. West will be the new superintendent of accounts and finance. This position requires more attention than any of the others, so far as office work is concerned, and Mr. West is the one member of the new council with sufficient time on his hands for the job without interfering with personal affairs.

With West as superintendent of accounts and finance, M. B. Pryor will become head of the public safety department and John Dugan will head streets. Mayor Marietta is superintendent of public affairs by virtue of his office. The position of superintendent of police and public property will be turned over to James H. Gurney. Mr. Gurney expects to find time for the water question in addition to his duties as head of the street department.

It was intimated today that there would be no sweeping changes in the city payroll. A new city engineer is certain to be named, together with a new police chief, the chief and street commissioner. It is said the expenses of the department are to be cut considerably. A new city engineer is certain to be named, together with a new police chief, the chief and street commissioner. WON'T TAKE ORDERSRepublican Leader Says Wilson Can't Run His Own Party.

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—President Wilson today asked Senator Gallagher and Representative Mann, Republican leaders of the Senate and House, respectively, to compare with him before the opening of Congress on legislation for national defense. The time of the conference will be arranged to suit the two leaders.

"The President may give orders to the Democrats in Congress," Mr. Mann said, "but he certainly cannot call me to the White House to give orders. I am perfectly willing to consult with him, but not to go up there to be told to do what he has decided upon. Everybody is for preparedness, of course, but I am not willing to say what attitude the Republicans in this House will take towards the Administration in the coming session. I know just what it is from the documents, not from the newspapers. I am for all defense preparedness that is necessary. I believe in treating such an issue as a non-partisan question."

HEALING THE BREACHEfforts Made to Prevent Serious Split in Federation of Labor.*By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20.—The plan of attempting to heal a breach in the ranks of the American Federation of Labor, arising out of the presentation late last night of a resolution calling for the suspension of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners is before the concluding session of the federation's 35th annual convention today.

The union in question is the second largest in the national union in America. Had the resolution been adopted, it would have meant the loss of 250,000 members of the federation and threatened the disruption of the organization, according to federation officers.

"After a heated debate a substitute was adopted not calling for expulsion but offering a means of reaching an understanding was adopted."

STADER BUILDING IS LEASED FOR A PICTURE THEATRE*Wagner and Wishart of the Globe Get Main Street
Location.*RENOVATIONS TO COST $10,000*Entire New Addition, Built a Year Ago, to be Occupied, Together With Portion of the Old Building; Plans Are Sent to Harrisburg for O. K.

Negotiations have just been closed by C. A. Wagner and John Wishart, proprietors of the Globe Theatre on North Pittsburgh street, for the occupancy of the Stader Building at the corner of Main street and Meadow lane as a motion picture theatre. Renovations costing in the neighborhood of $10,000 will be started immediately upon receipt of word from Harrisburg approving the plans that have been submitted.

For some years past the Globe management has been seeking a location nearer the business center of the town, and one affording greater seating capacity than now enjoyed. Various sites were considered, but it was not until recently that a satisfactory proposition was obtained.

The proximity of the Stader Building to the West Penn waiting room and the fact that it is in the very heart of the downtown business district was favor for it with the motion picture people.

J. L. Stader, who owns the property, made satisfactory terms. The deal has just been closed and contractors are already flurrying on the job. Under the terms of the lease the entire new addition will be used for the theatre, together with one store room and a portion of the upper floor of the older building. Mr. Stader expects to move his undertaking offices to the front of the second floor of the building.

The proprietors of the Globe Theatre expect to have a theatre with a seating capacity of approximately 500. The theatre will be located on the corner of the room now occupied by A. B. Kurtz as a jewelry store. The main floor will seat from 400 to 500, while there will be a balcony capable of holding approximately 300.

"Safety First" is to be observed in the arrangements. There will be three splendid exits leading out of the building to Meadow lane, a paved thoroughfare. There will be two aisles, each four feet wide, and it is declared that the new theatre will be as safe as any in the county.

The interior decorations will be of private boxes. There will be two of them in the rear of the main floor. Manager Wagner believes that these will prove popular among those who desire to hold theatre parties. In other theatres the boxes, which are close to the stage, are not satisfactory for parties.

The Manhattan Cafe will continue to occupy its present quarters until the expiration of its lease. It is possible that the Pryce Printing Company, Dr. J. L. Junk, J. E. Knitz, J. Newburg and other occupants of the Stader building will be required to find other quarters.

Wishart and Wagner have conducted the Globe Theatre for a good many years. Despite a location which has not been considered favorable, the concern has prospered. Manager Wagner, in anticipation of obtaining a larger house, has recently added to his list of feature attractions and the Globe program is very popular.

CORNER COP WILL GET A WOOD BLOCK TO STAND ON

Bricks Are Too Cold on the Feet in Winter, Patrolman Ganno Declares.

Patrolman Frank Ganno has succeeded in getting Mayor Marietta's consent to have a wooden block placed between the street car tracks on Brimstone corner, from which traffic can be directed by the corner cop. The police who serve on the corner contend that the bricks in winter time are very much colder to stand on than a block of wood would be. In the summer months wood would be softer than stone.

The order for the block, which will be four inches thick and about two feet square, was sent to a company this morning. It will be laid in line with the curb of Pittsburgh street and will be placed when the new brick are laid.

There is a hole in the corner at present but it is at the corner of the curb on the north side of Pittsburgh street. It is inconvenient for a policeman to direct traffic from that place.

SHORTAGE OF BRICKSContractor Unable to Finish Stretch of South Pittsburgh street was opened this morning after being closed for two days while brick were being laid. The entire section that was torn up has not been bricked, however, (there being about 20 yards still to be finished). The bricks piled up along the curb have all been used and no more paving can be done until another car is delivered.

Contractor J. L. Dick got word that the car had been loaded yesterday but that the Baltimore & Ohio railroad instead of taking the loaded car ran more empties in on the track. The car will be shipped as soon as possible and the brick will be laid immediately on their arrival. Knowing that the street could not be bricked soon, Contractor Dick hired a steam roller and rolled the brick that had been laid, after which traffic was allowed to pass.

Instead of moving the stretch between Willow road and Carnegie avenue next as was planned, the force has been shifted to the section that has been torn up near Brimstone corner. The force was rolled this morning and although no hopes were entertained for the arrival of a new car it showed up at the last minute. The day was being laid this afternoon and as soon as it can be rolled the brick will be put down.

It is possible that a precedent may be established by the election of one of the new members to that position.

"HOLY CITY" SCORES TRIUMPH; MORGANTOWN SOLOIST SCORES

Oratorio and Concert in New Presbyterian Church Proves a Big Success in Every Way.

Chorister John Davis and the singers who sang Gounod's "Holy City" at the Presbyterian Church last night provided an artistic treat for the 450 or more persons who heard it. The best singers in the city were included in the choir and under the capable direction of Mr. Davis they rendered the various numbers of this wonderful work in faultless style.

Prior to the oratorio a half-hour concert was given by John Davis, tenor; Miss Martha Eaton, soprano; and John George of Morgantown, baritone.

Mr. George, who had not been heard here before, completely captivated his hearers. He sang "Invitation," the number with which he won the first prize at the Elksfield. In his performance he sang the familiar "I Hear You Calling Me." Miss Eaton sang "Yesterday and Today," and "A June Morning," and Mr. Davis sang "The Trumpeter."

The oratorio itself was a triumph for all concerned. Special credit must be given to Mr. Davis, the Director, and Mrs. A. W. Bishop, who handled the big organ in fine style.

To Observe Peace Day. Peace Day will be observed tomorrow at the Immaculate Conception Church, as well as all other Catholic churches throughout the world. Special prayers for the dead soldiers will be offered at all the services and collections will be taken for destitute Poles.

THE BIG BATTLE SCENE FROM "THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

SOLOMON THEATRE.

"EVIDENCE"—The Shuberts will present Edwin August and Lillian Tucker at the Solomon Theatre today in the five reel drama of English society and military life, "Evidence." Aristocratic English society life, involving scandal, divorce, military routine in India, unhappiness, reconciliation—these are the ingredients of the drama, "Evidence," which was recently successfully played at the Lyric Theatre, New York. It has been turned into a photoplay and will be released on the World Film Corporation schedule and will be presented at the Solomon Theatre today. The evidence meant by the title is that held by a husband against his wife, who innocently allows herself to be compromised by an anonymous army captain. There is a divorce, and the efforts of a good-natured friend to reunite the pair are balked until at length the offending army captain is induced to sign a statement exonerating the wife. Then there is reconciliation and the restoration of happiness. Lillian Tucker plays the part of the wife, and Edwin August is Curley Lushington, the good-natured friend. "Evidence" is a photographically made, "Evidence" an unusually attractive offering in the motion picture theatre.

Also "A White Feather Volunteer" is a strong dramatic two reel Lillian Tucker drama featuring Lillian Tucker and Rupert Julian. It is a story of the European war, and the manner in which men were enlisted in the British army. It has a beautiful love story entwined in the meshes of the drama. The Powers vaudeville act, "The Thinking Cuckoos," is an unusually good one and will please. The Neator comedy, "Father's Helping Hand," has Billy Bletcher and Ray Gallagher in the cast. It is a merry tale of a rich man's son and his debts. Monday, Charles Chaplin comes in the joyous comedy, "The Rounders." "The Broken Coin" is also a star attraction. Tuesday, the Broadway star Marie Tempest in the five reel comedy, "Mrs. Plum Pudding," will be the attraction.

THE COLONIAL THEATRE.

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"—Many of the critics who have been sternest in their exactions of American dramatists announce their belief that D. W. Griffith has "put over" the great American play, "The Birth of a Nation." Griffith's wonderful spectacle-drama, "The Birth of a Nation," is referred to the unique offering at the Colonial for three nights, beginning Monday, November 22, with matinee on Tuesday and Wednesday.

For many years American dramatists wrote able plays of particular states, cities or localities, ranging from "Alabama" to "The Henrietta" and from "Way Down East" to "The Great Divide." But no one man seemed to grasp the whole spirit and genius of America until David Wark Griffith picked a suggestion for his theme out of Dixon's "The Leopard's Spots" and "The Clansman" and started to develop it.

Among the distinguished actors in the cast are Henry B. Walthall, Lillian Gish, Mae Marsh, Miriam Cooper, Mary Alden, Josephine Crowell, Ralph Lewis, Joseph Bonomo, Raymond Walsh, Donald Crisp, Howard Gaye, George Seligman, Walter Long, Elmer Clifton and Robert Harron. Eighteen thousand people, 3,000 horses and no less than 5,000 scenes went in the making of the big spectacle.

Seats go on sale Wednesday morning. "THE LAW OF THE LAND"—"The Law of the Land," which comes to the Colonial Monday, November 22, is from the pen of America's greatest author, George Broadhurst, and has the approval of the Boston critics where the play had quite a run. The Boston Advertiser had this to say: "The Law of the Land," a melodrama in four acts, by George Broadhurst, presented yesterday for the first time at the Majestic Theatre, is as stirring and forceful a drama of the sort as has been seen here in years. The interest is gripping from the initial to the final curtain. The situations are plausible, the motives reasonable and soundly presented. There is no dull moment and no false situation. The emotional appeal is true, the situations are so intensely dramatic, the scenes so powerful, that these normal processes stir the interest of the audience to the utmost from the beginning to the end, and we can readily see why "The Law of the Land" had a solid year's run at the 18th Street Theatre, New York City. It is certainly a great play."

Scene from "Her Great Match."

THE ARCADE.

"HER GREAT MATCH"—The latest offering of the Metro Program is a unique romance entitled "Her Great Match," from the pen of that master story builder, Clyde Fitch, whose plays dealing with the age-old but ever-new elements contained in love and femininity created their own vogue, when originally presented. Gail Kane, whose potent dramatic charms bewitched Broadway audiences in the stellar roles of "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "The Miracle Man," and other notable stage successes, is seen in the leading part in "Her Great Match," wherein she repeats the distinctive outside efforts, which won for her such notable laurels on the speaking stage. "Her Great Match" is a five part act romantic drama from the photoplay studio of Popular Plays and Players and will be seen at the Arcade Theatre today.

THE GLOBE.

"THE HEART OF JENNIFER"—Hazel Dawn, the most beautiful stage artist that ever appeared on the screen, stars in the Famous Players Film Company's latest feature production, "The Heart of Jennifer," the current attraction on the Paramount Program at the Globe Theatre. The subject was written by Edith Howard Deland, the author of another recent Famous Players screen triumph, "Rage." "The Heart of Jennifer" is the story of a woman's strong love for her husband, which prompts her to place upon herself the guilt of the crime committed by his sister. In the role of Jennifer, Hazel Dawn suggests the heroic fortitude of the sacrificing wife. Ably directed by James Kirkwood, who also appears on the screen as James Murray, Jennifer's husband, and possessing, besides the attraction of the charming star and a capable supporting cast, the value of one of the most powerfully dramatic and most tenderly romantic stories ever screened, "The Heart of Jennifer" must be conceded a prominent place among the most notable of recent feature productions. For lavishness of interior and beauty of exterior settings, the production conforms with the highest standard of the Famous Players Film Company. The tense dramatic construction of the story is so well balanced that the swift progress of the plot never pauses, until the logical and overpowering climax is reached, in which, by the way, Jennifer's husband discovers the innocence and courageous renunciation of his wife, and learns to appreciate her love more than ever before.

FIRST DOSE
Ends Dizziness, Headache, or Gas on Stomach.

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from indigestion, dyspepsia, or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking Tonaline Tablets.
People with weak stomachs should take Tonaline Tablets occasionally, and there will be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, sour distaste, gas on stomach, or belching of undigested food, headache, dizziness, or sick stomach, and besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your blood with noxious gases. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes after taking Tonaline Tablets.

Go to your druggist and get a $1 box of Tonaline Tablets and you will find always in the table with a helpful appetite, and what you eat will be good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are no going to be any more bad nights and no more days for you. Tonaline tabs freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

Tonaline Tablets cost $1.00 for a 15 days' treatment. At druggists or mailed by American Proprietary Co., Boston, Mass.

THE HEART OF NIGHT WIND

A STORY OF THE GREAT NORTH WEST

By VINGIE E. ROE

ILLUSTRATIONS by RAY WALTERS

COPYRIGHT BY DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY

Everything had happened. The whole country was alive. Not only a ridge or two, a valley in between, as it had been here, a day, two days back, but ridge after ridge, valley after valley—the world, the earth, the heavens, Sandry was somewhere up behind the Hog Back.

For a moment the girl looked out across the slough, lying like a dirty ribbon between its gray and willow banks. Then she turned troubled eyes to the general.

"Mother," she said, "I know it now. There's danger to Sandry, and I'm going."

"Child, you're wrong this time. Sandry's a man. Well as you know the hills I can't let you go. I forbid it."

She felt a Presence of Disaster Which Coosah Shared.

They faced each other a moment while Silts tossed back her braids and lightened her belt.

"I'm going," she said quietly. Ma Daily, who had raised her, said no more; but as she turned to the stove slanders, as her work in every time of trial, there was a deeper life about her tremulous old mouth.

Swift as the wind the girl ran down the valley toward the deserted camp. Miss Ordway watched her and against her will, drawn by some subtle excitement, some urging power, she, too, gathered her skirts and began to run across the puffing ashes. At the least she came upon the other just leading out Black Holt, a shining beauty, eager for the turf.

"I'm going too," painted Poppy, reaching for a bridle that hung behind the bay.

Silts had always ridden bareback, but now, why she did not know, she took down Sandry's saddle and slung it on Black Holt. Poppy followed her movements, and by the time Silts had put foot in stirrup and swung up, she had caught up her wide skirt and mounted. Silts faced around at her and her eyes were beginning to sparkle in a face pale with rage.

Without a word they galloped up across the lone valley and took to what had once been a trail in the nodding ferns. Now it was but a slight depression running amid the blackened trunks, the molten heaps of ashes. Poppy Ordway followed Silts, on a chance, a dare, a mere hazard. She did not know the danger, the menace of the hills.

She was saying to herself after her catting habit of self-communion: "I'll have my precious pocket soon. I know I shall. The gods are with me. I feel it."

Once Silts turned upon her. "Go back!" she cried fiercely, "something is about to happen."

"You're right," said Poppy, and for once the hardness of her nature showed like a rock under waves in eyes and voice and manner, "and I'll be in at the happening."

They spoke no more. Silts checked Black Holt in another mile, rose in her stirrups and looked over the appalling spectacle before them. Over and beyond lay the tumbled hills, thick with heavy timber, that ran into the Silts basin. Somewhere in their fastnesses reared the mighty spine of the Hog Back with its secret trail. And somewhere up behind the Hog Back was Sandry. Calm as she was by nature, Silts shuddered as she looked upon the world of flame and smoke. To Poppy Ordway, ignorant of its meaning and its might, it was a splendid spectacle.

Silts plumed down the ridge on the other side and the woman followed. The shadows of the smoke-filled valley grew into an uncanny twilight. The fine, light ashes made slippery going and more than once Black Holt slipped, to catch his footing, catlike. They rode ahead and entered the fire belt. The dark grew denser. The trail lay like a tangible blanket in the hollows and dips. Silts urged Black Holt. Something was calling out of the gray darkness—chilling her heart, hurrying her progress.

She had ridden for a time in deep thought when a scream from the woman behind drew her up with a start. She turned just in time to see the big bay fall and go tumbling down the mountain. With his first lurch he had along his rider out of the saddle and into a pile of ashes. It was true to her nature that the girl, discounting, ran, not to the woman but down the slope after the horse. She found him prone and groaning in a little trench, his right foreleg doubled back, the white bones piercing the earth.

Poppy Ordway peered fearfully down, her trembling hands gathering her dust-covered skirts.

"Come, here!" Silts cried, commanding: "come here!"

It was the same voice, whispering with primitive rage, that had compelled that craven "Sandry" from Poppy Ordway's lips that night at the pump, and as the woman had obeyed then, so she obeyed now.

Silts rose, reaching in the blouse of her shirt, and brought out a gun.

Poppy Ordway shrank back, white as chalk.

"What do you mean?" she cried shrilly, "what are you going to do?" Horror widened her blue eyes grotesquely.

"I never shot a living thing in my life," said Silts solemnly, "but I've got to kill him. And you stand by to watch—it's your work."

There was a sharp report that did not echo in the fire-deadened hills, and the good horse closed his eyes in sudden peace. Silts turned away to where Black Holt looked on with wonder, Coosah crouching beside him.

In a swift revolution she flung the weapon far down the mountain.

She started to mount without a glance at the woman when the other spoke.

"What am I to do?"

"If I don't care what you do. Go home. And I hope you never reach there!"

"My God!" cried Poppy Ordway, "don't leave me like this! And look! Look there!"

All along the valley by which they had come a long, swift drift of smoke was rolling, sent out like a current from some newly fired cross canyon. Its low-lying pall formed a bewildering mystery to anyone save a native of the hills. A woman on foot would never reach camp through its blinding darkness.

Long Silts sat turned in her saddle and looked at it. Then a thought of Sandry and his standards pierced the emotions that dominated her. There was but one thing to do.

"Come up," she said at last, "I'll have to take you."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Fire Within Fire.

So it was a double burden that the great black horse carried into the mystery of the shrouded country. Hatred was like a wall between them and Poppy's fingers, clinging porcupine to Silts' shirt, twitched with desire. How short a distance to the pocket in the bagging blouse!

So they rode with smarting eyes and aching lungs, down into a dim valley and up again, between fires, under mighty, towering trunks, tottering to their fall. They passed the high spines of the Hog Back, a majestic crown against the smoke, and threaded the ruins of the forest. At last they saw great fires ahead and men running among them.

"Where is Sandry?" Silts asked, unabashed, of a soldier.

"Don't know. Haven't seen him for hours." He hurried on and the girl rode along the line where a hundred men were laboring with ax and spade and blanket. The wind had dropped and they were working north and south, trying to bottle up a roaring crosscut of a valley. Scattered throughout the hills in squads, obeying the orders sent down from time to time by the ranger and his aids, who patrolled the ridges with field glasses, they worked like a great machine, though they saw no farther than their own trench, their own line of backfire, their own stretch of felled pines.

A Tall Lone Spiral into the Dun Heavens.

But work as they would at the base of the high, massed peaks, Sandry was about ready for his grand coup at the foot of the Dillingworth, and who snatched a stranger from a cross-canyon and shot it high across hills and backfire and trench into the dry pines on that slope. Also she had sent, an hour before, a tall, lone spiral into the dun heavens from the very heart of the apparition behind the Hog Back. That spiral had caught the eye of Walter Sandry, working with his waning strength north on the east slope. For how many hours he did not know, he had neither eaten nor slept. But still he went with the spirit that would not quit so long as another stayed at his post.

"If the rains would only come!" he thought as he struggled, "I could nearly bring them down. If they would only bring their first showers now!"

The roar of the new fire—a solitary pine that went up like a huge, graceful torch—was in his ears, its light before him.

"Now how under heaven did it get started up in here?"

He had spoken aloud as he wearily skirted a clump of young spruce and the words fell short, abruptly broken as he emerged from their shelter.

Before him, in a small cleared space, stood Hamden of the Yellow Pine. His back was toward Sandry and he carried in his hand three candles. He was nearly as black and disreputable as any scarecrow worn among the fires. He was intently watching something at the foot of a second pine. Silts' Sandry moved until this object was in his line of vision.

Dashed high in a pile of tinder-dry needles, a fourth candle glowed brightly in the smoky gloom. With utmost cunning it had been set close against the tree where a long branch of pitch trailed down the rugged bark from far up among the branches. When the candle burned down to the resin-steeped needles—and a man might travel far in the meantime—the upleaping flames need only to flick that banner to rush with lightning speed to the awaying, inflammable top.

For a long moment the Easterner stood, lost in wonder. Then the whole thing burst upon him and he knew, Hamden of the Yellow Pine was the power behind the holocaust!

As this stupendous knowledge forced itself into his weary brain, the other man turned and strode swiftly away among the pines. The working climb had taken the breath from Sandry's lungs and he drew a pistol from his belt and fired over Hamden's head. Like an animal the man whirled, hand to hip, and faced him.

"I've got you at last!" Sandry panted. "I've got you at last!"

Hamden's heavy lips curled venomously from his short, strong teeth.

"You!" he breathed, "you! You damned Easterner! You lily-handed tenderfoot!"

Sandry smiled grimly. "This is just about the blackest spot in your crooked career, Hamden," he said at last, "the blackest and the biggest blunder. I can't see why you did it."

"You can't!" snarled Hamden. "Oh, you can't! Well, by God, you will before I'm done with you. You didn't know what you was getting up against—you and your—your—Poppy Ordway. You made your fight, and you thought you'd won! But you reckoned without me. I'm makin' mine, and it's a hummer."

He glared savagely along the gun into Sandry's bloodshot eyes, and at this moment Black Holt heaved up through the ferns, Silts peering eagerly along his straining neck, and the face of Poppy Ordway at her shoulder. The girl slid out of the saddle and ran to Sandry.

"What is it?" she cried, "what is it?"

Sandry pointed to the burning candle at the pine's foot and hastily she sprang forward and snuffed it out with thumb and finger.

Miss Ordway slipped down from the foamy, steaming lips of the horse, to stand leaning against him, her bright eyes beginning to sparkle with the tension of the moment. At sight of her Hamden's face grew gray beneath its grimace. She was smiling with that pleasure which she always found where men fought, or engineered dramatic coups, or worked out clever schemes, and her beauty was never so maddening to him in all his knowledge of her. His one pure dream had, in truth, reached a sorry ending.

"Sandry," said Silts simply, "I came to you. There's danger somewhere—I don't know where or what—but there's something in the shadows."

A vagrant wind fanned up long sheets and whistling banners, that hurried up to leap into the mounting canopy behind the Hog Back. The actors in this little drama were too intent to hear the heightened note.

"So you come to be in at the death!" said Hamden at last, his eyes on Poppy in anguished fury. "You do me to death and you want to see me die! Oh, the game's up and I don't care a damn! I'm the smartest one of this bunch yet. An' but for the fact that you've got them two letters you stole from the commissioner and th' account book with the records of our deals an' rake-off's and so on, I'd a had a chance to fight an' win yet! But I know you, Poppy—Oh, how damned well I know you!—an' I know I'm whipped. But I'm makin' a fight—you're damned right I am!"

He waved an eloquent arm around at the appalling, shrinking country which seemed to crouch in its nakedness under the shrouding smoke.

"But th' talkin' that gets in way," that you done it all for him! A feeble drivin' thing from the East! And the way you'll marry him! Well, go to it! He'll have to move out, for there won't be any more Dillingworth Lumber company in twenty hours. I'll be behind bars, all right, but I've cleaned him out."

As he finished with a reckless laugh Sandry turned amazed eyes to Poppy. She was pale with anger and she avoided his glance. This was the last thing she wanted—that Sandry should know of her attempt to forestall him in the "getting" of Hamden. She saw her chance to gain his gratitude by her gift drifting away. Also the revelation of her lawyer's perfidy was a mighty blow.

"Hamden," she said unsteadily, "you're the coarsest beast I know!"

"All right. But ain't that what it's all for? To lay me a burnt offering to his feeble marble to win his mince' love? Didn't you say you'd marry him? Ain't I heard it right an' left?"

"No!" cried Poppy, red with rage under Sandry's astounded eyes, "no! I never did!"

"Yes!" cried Silts ringingly. "You did! You said when Sandry was dying that you were his promised wife!"

In the hush that followed, intense, fed by the dropping brands from the huge pine which was a huge pine, a sound as incongruous with the strained moment as could be imagined.

It was a shower of notes, high, sparkling, thrilling, that seemed to fall like drops of diamond through the murky canopy. They came up from the west, mysterious, martial, joyful, and their burden was "Lord, Kindly Light, Lead Them to Me On!"

"Oh, the Preacher!"

And presently through the dim dun- white of the smoke that crept with portent between the crowding pines, there emerged the familiar, erect form. With one accord they turned to him as he approached and Sandry for the one moment left Hamden unguarded.

It was all that was necessary. Quick as light the hand that had first instinctively sought his hip and arm, in command. There was a flash of metal, a bang in the dun chuffence, a straightening of the heavy arm that held it, a spurt of flame, a shot.

But quick as the timberman had been, another was quicker. With one leap as Hamden reached for his gun the Preacher reached Sandry, snatched him aside and flung himself before him, his fate sealed in protest.

The bullet meant for the Easterner found lodgment in the gentle breast of the wandering player of hymns, and he sank down in Sandry's arms.

PLAY TO A TIE

South Siders Find a Harder Opponent Than Was Expected.

The South Side Preps played ON North End Juniors to a tie yesterday afternoon on Fayette field. The South Side ran into a bigger proposition than they expected when they tackled the Juniors. They were certain of winning the game but the North Enders soon showed they also had some football in them.

The North Enders even pushed the ball to within a few yards of South Side's goal line but at that crisis the team rallied and held their opponents.
Then an argument started as to the eligibility of one of the North End's players. The referee forfeited the game to the North End and left the field. Neither team was satisfied with this, however, and another referee was secured and the game played out.
The West Side Juniors will play the North Enders today at Fayette field.
